

Charoite
by Nature's Finest Art

Discovered in Russia in 1978 in the Murun mountains in Yakutia. This is known as the only known location for this rare mineral. The name Charoite is derived from the Charo River which is near where it was found.

Colors range from bright lavender, violet and lilac to dark purple with swirling patterns of black Augite, transparent crystals of microcline feldspar, and orange Tinaksite

Charoite is so unusual looking with its chatoyancy and strange looking spirally strands of fibrous material that it is often mistaken for a synthetic. It is so beautiful that it is now one of the most famous rare purple stones know for its rare natural beauty.

Charoite is said to enhance self-esteem, accelerate spiritual growth, and improve the ability to love.
